

Leading For Good

James Cameron

James Cameron is currently serving as Vice President of Global Leadership and Learning in Walmart where he has been for 10 years in different roles. In this role he is responsible for creating and leading a system designed to find great, diverse leaders in the company and helping accelerate their careers and release their potential so that we have the leaders we need for the future. Vertical development and the insights from the GLP form the backbone of the programs he runs, particularly for senior leaders. The coaching accompanying the insights is also a critical element of the journey many senior executives need to embark upon to be successful.

His career before Walmart was global risk consultancy, several years of business consultancy and a 26 year military career during which he was made Commander of the British Empire by the Queen for services to counter terrorism – an honour he should probably return as he is now an American citizen!

James has been married to Linda for 34 years, who he met while she was also serving. They have two children; a son who also works for Walmart and a daughter who recently married and lives in Dallas.
